Deciding to accept a position in Qatar

Hi! I'm John Impagliazzo. It's the 30th of June, 2008. I just thought the academic community should know that after fifty years of teaching privately in high schools and in universities, I've decided to retire from Hofstra University effective this August. However, I'm not hanging up my skates. I've accepted a position as endowed chair professor at Qatar University in the Middle East. The position entails the development of educational models for the country and to promote research throughout the country. I'll also be an advisor to the Emir on technology issues involving computing.
